Democrats win big in Fairfield County, claiming top spots in several municipalities

BY GARY LARKIN / glarkin@westfairinc.com

Election Night 2025 was a victorious one for the Democrats in greater Fairfield County as several Republican incumbent mayors and first selectmen lost, according to unofficial results from the state Secretary of the State’s office.

The Democrats who replaced GOP incumbents included Kevin Christie, the first person of color elected first selectman of Westport; Dr. David Chess in Stratford, Bruce Walczak in Newtown, Pat DelMonaco in New Fairfield and Rich Smith in Milford. Respectively, they replaced First Selectwoman Jen Tooker of Westport, who didn’t run; Mayor Laura Hoydick and Mayor Tony Giannattasio.

See related story on Westchester election results
Christie, who ran with second selectman candidate Amy Wistreich, defeated Don O’Day and Andrea Moore, 4,974-3,256. DelMonaco beat Melissa Lindsey, a Republican, 2,537-2,208 and Smith defeated Giannattasio by a count of 9,964-8,059.

Barbary Smyth, the second woman to be elected mayor of Norwalk, replaced Democratic Mayor Harry Rilling, who retired. She defeated Vinny Scicchitano, a Republican, 10,367-7,098, and Chess defeated Hoydick, 7,879-6,450.

As for incumbent mayors and first selectmen, Democrats kept their seats in Brookfield, Danbury, Sherman, Stamford, Trumbull. They included First Selectman Steve Dunn, Mayor Roberto Alves, First Selectman Don Lowe, Mayor Caroline Simmons and First Selectman Vicki Tesoro, respectively. Republican incumbents were victorious in Bethel, Easton, Greenwich, Monroe and Shelton.

The winners included First Selectman Dan Carter, First Selectman Dan Lent, Mayor Fred Camilo and First Selectman Terrence Rooney and First Selectman Mark Lauretti.

The closest races occurred in Easton, where Lent won by 6 votes over Nicholas D’Addario (1,611-1,605) and Monroe, where Rooney won by 195 votes over Leon Ambrosey.

After polls closed in Norwalk, Democratic mayor-elect Smyth, the current Common Council president who is a former Norwalk Public Schools teacher and community leader, issued the following statement:

“Throughout this campaign, I’ve been humbled by the broad and diverse coalition that came together to support our vision for Norwalk’s future — from teachers and the building trades to small business owners, families, and women across our city,” Smyth said. “To all of you, thank you for believing in what we can accomplish together.”

“As someone who spent years teaching in Norwalk Public Schools, I know how essential strong schools are to the fabric of our community. My priorities as mayor will include strengthening our schools, continuing to improve our infrastructure, growing our tax base, and ensuring that Norwalk remains affordable for all residents.”

Meanwhile, on the GOP side incumbent Mayor Hoydick thanked her supporters and wished Mayor-elect Chess congratulations.

“Congratulations to the Chess campaign,” the mayor said. “My hope is that you will lead our town wisely with sound and grounded judgment.

“My most heartfelt gratitude to everyone that supported me and my campaign. Thank you for your time, your efforts and your vote. To my family, thank you for your love, patience and support during these least eight years – even when it meant you having to take second place.”

Barbara Smyth, mayor-elect of Norwalk

Democrats do well in Westchester elections and in key contests elsewhere

BY PETER KATZ / pkatz@westfairinc.com

Democrats had a generally strong showing in Westchester County on Election Day 2025, with incumbent County Executive Ken Jenkins being elected over Republican Christine Sculti. The results in Westchester were in keeping with Democratic victories in key contests that have attracted national interest including Democrats winning governorships in New Jersey and Virginia and Democrat Zorhan Mamdani winning over former Gov. Andrew Cuomo to become the next mayor of New York City.

Democrat Tom Roach, currently the mayor of White Plains, bested Republican Sheila Marcotte, an Eastchester councilwoman, to succeed Westchester County Clerk Tim Idoni, who is retiring from the post. Democrat Justin Brasch was elected to succeed Roach as mayor.

Westchester voters selected four Democratic judges for the State Supreme Court 9th Judicial District: Verris Shako; Diane Clerkin; John Collins Jr.; and Desmond Lyons. Democrat Erin McGoeys was elected to the County Court and Democrat Emily Rubin was elected Family Court judge.

In the contest for county executive,

Republican Sculti had received an endorsement from Rupert Murdoch's conservative newspaper the New York Post. Sculti had been defeated in February when she ran against Jenkins to fill the remaining term of former County Executive George Latimer, who resigned after being elected to Congress. In her campaign, she has emphasized a need for government fiscal responsibility.

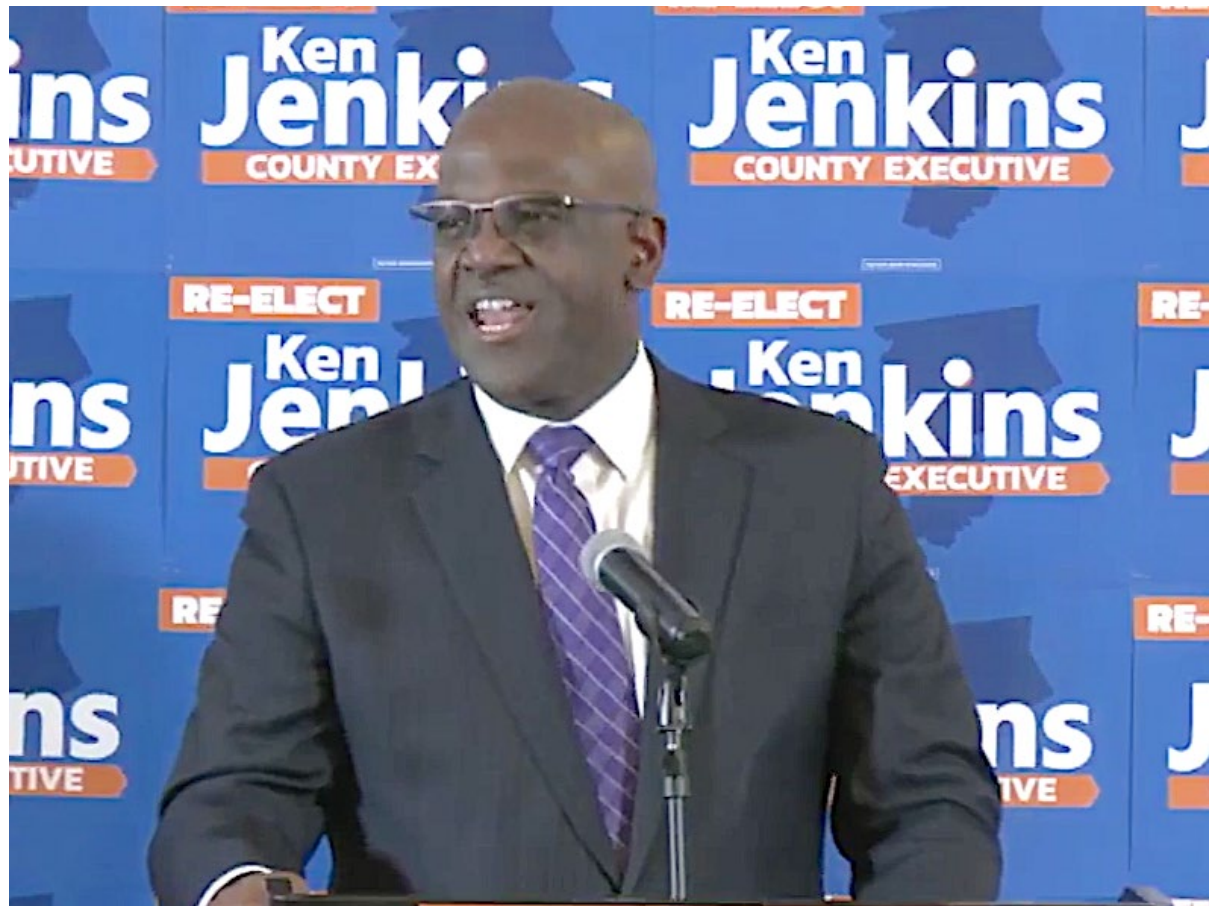

During the election night gathering of county Democrats and Jenkins supporters at Kanopi at the top of The Opus in White Plains, State Senate Majority Leader Andrew Stewart-Cousins said, "It's a fabulous night for Democrats across the country. They thought we were asleep ... but what we did was exercise our rights."

Jenkins said that he was glad that his campaign was able to maintain stability, confidence and civility in what he termed really difficult and challenging times.

"Tonight we're celebrating more than a victory," Jenkins said. "When leadership and government listens, when it actually cares about the people, we put people first, it makes a difference and the progress follows.

We've made Westchester safer, we've Jenkins giving victory speech.

“Tonight we're celebrating more than a victory... When leadership and government listens... the progress follows.”

— Jenkins, Westchester County Executive

made Westchester more affordable, we've made it stronger, we made it more sustainable, we made it more united, than ever, ever before. Let's keep moving forward with integrity, with purpose and with pride in the place that we call home, Westchester County."

Across the Hudson River in Rockland County, incumbent County Executive Ed Day, running as a Republican/Conservative and not facing a Democratic Party candidate, scored almost 74% of the votes against Michael Parietti who ran as the Good Government candidate. Day will be serving his fourth term in the office.

In New York City, 34-year-old Zohran Mamdani who beat out former Gov. Andrew Cuomo in a primary to get the Democratic nomination to run for mayor, won the office. He again defeated Cuomo, who ran for mayor as an independent candidate. The Republican candidate was Curtis Sliwa. President Trump proclaimed that Mamdani is a "communist" and threatened to withhold federal funds from New York City if Mamdani was elected.

Democrats scored big in New Jersey, where Rep. Mikie Sherrill won the race for governor against Republican nominee Jack Ciattarelli who received strong backing from Donald Trump. Sherrill will follow the term-limited Democratic Gov. Phil Murphy. The contest marked Ciattarelli's third defeat for governor.

Democrat Abigail Spanberger flipped the governor's office in Virginia to the Democrats and Democrat Ghazala Hashmi won the Virginia lieutenant governor's race and will become the nation's first Muslim woman elected to statewide office.

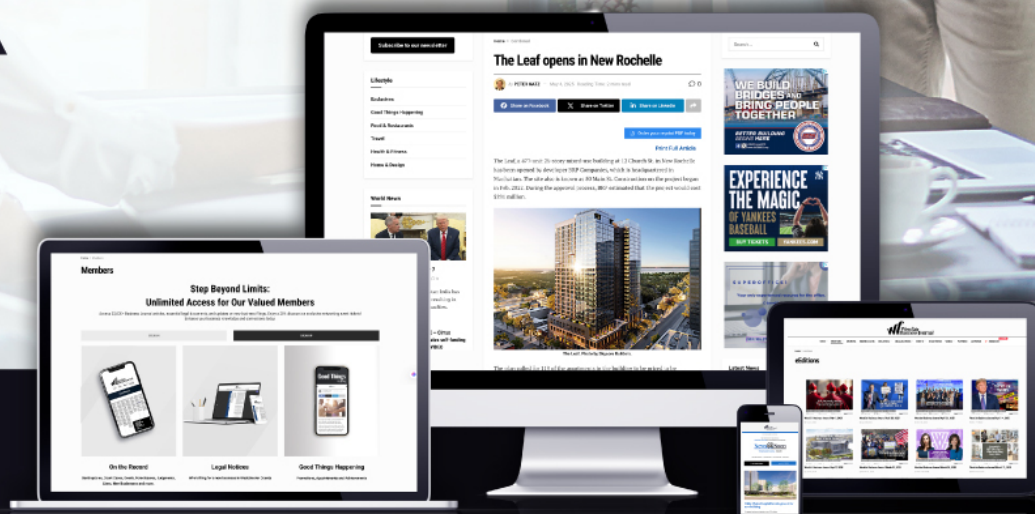

Voters in California approved a proposition for which Gov. Gavin Newsom had campaigned authorizing redrawing of the state's Congressional District map. The redistricting in California would be to create five more Democratic seats in the House of Representatives to neutralize Republican gerrymandering. Republicans have been working to redraw districts to pick up additional House seats in next year's elections.

New York and Connecticut seek to bolster area SNAP recipients

BY GEORGETTE GOUVEIA / ggouveia@westfairinc.com

With the federal government scheduled to provide SNAP recipients with only half of the November benefits — and Democratic leaders from 25 states suing for release of the full amount — New York and Connecticut are among the states trying to close the gap.

On Thursday, Oct. 30, Gov. Kathy Hochul (D-New York) declared a state of emergency and committed "an additional $65 million in new state funds for emergency food assistance that will reinforce New York's network of vital food bank and pantry partners... to help the three million New Yorkers losing food assistance...."

A press release from her office noted that the total amount of state funds allocated to emergency food assistance reached $106 million. Hochul also said she will deploy Empire State Service Corps and SUNY Corps members "to support local food banks during this emergency period of increased need and continue to explore food hubs at schools."

The State University of New York (SUNY) system has hundreds of students who serve as "peer navigators," helping with food assistance.

Empire State Service Corps typically helps with a variety of initiatives, including tutoring, disaster relief and supporting food banks.

Meanwhile, Gov. Ned Lamont (D-Connecticut) announced his state would provide $3 million in emergency funds to Connecticut Foodshare, a nonprofit that supports food banks.

"While this $3 million in emergency funding will not fill the entire gap left by the federal government, it represents our state's commitment to supporting our neighbors during this crisis," Lamont said in a statement.

About 360,000 Connecticut residents will be affected by SNAP delays, according to Connecticut Department of Social Services Commissioner Andrea Barton Reeves.

Local organizations have already leapt into the breach. Feeding Westchester has shared the first episode of its Hunger Report, detailing the worsening effects of the situation for federal employees in our area and some 77,000 Westchester SNAP recipients as the federal government shutdown, which began Oct. 1, moves deeper into its second month. This all comes after Feeding Westchester experienced a loss of nearly $4 million

"This $3 million in emergency funding will not fill the entire gap... but it represents our state's commitment to supporting our neighbors during this crisis."

in government funding.

Nevertheless, the Elmsford-based nonprofit set an initial goal of funding 20,000 emergency meals and has put out an SOS for community support.

On Oct. 30, the day before Halloween, Empire State Voices partnered with the Tarrytown Community Opportunity Center and the Peekskill Housing Authority to donate canned goods, nonperishables — and, of course, candy — to local families in need. More than 66,000 Hudson Valley residents rely on the benefits.

In Bethel, the Note Restaurant Group — which includes Notch8; Shakedown Street Eats; Fat Tony's Deli & Pizzeria; Topsy Tailgate; and Fire & Slice — has begun providing meals for five to 10 families each day. To participate, fill out the confidential request here.

B.I.B. (Better in Bethel Restaurant) is donating food bags for people in need. They're available at 186 Greenwood Ave. (475) 289-3620.

Another resource for low-income families — Daily Bread Food Pantry at 125 Park Ave. in Danbury.

Guests get to choose all their own food, subject to limits based on household size and item availability.

Various sectors are also taking care of their own. One Fair Wage has launched the Service Workers SNAP Emergency Fund to provide immediate relief to the workers who are among those hit hardest — restaurant and service workers.

According to One Fair Wage research, service workers rely on SNAP at twice the rate of other workers, a reflection of poverty wages across the industry.

"The people who feed us can't afford to feed themselves," said Saru Jayaraman, president of One Fair Wage. "This isn't just a story about food assistance. It's a story about poverty wages. Forty-two million Americans rely on food stamps, and millions of them are working. That reveals the crisis for what it really is — people working full time and still going hungry, because wages are too low to live on. The solution isn't half benefits or emergency patches: It's living wages. Blue states have both the opportunity and the responsibility to lead by passing laws that ensure no one who works for a living ever has to depend on food stamps to eat."

SNAP, or the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, grew out of the first Food Stamp Program in the Great Depression (1939). In fiscal 2023, 39% of its recipients were children, 42% working-age adults (18-59) and 19% elderly and/or disabled adults 60 and over. Among SNAP beneficiaries, 89.4% are U.S.-born citizens.

SNAP carries work requirements for "able-bodied adults without dependents ages 18 to 54" and most who can work do. But as One Fair Wage's Jayaraman observed, it's just not enough to make them food secure.

The effects of the program are profound, not just for recipients but for the community and beyond, as 73% of households had a gross monthly income at or below 100% of the federal poverty level in fiscal year 2023. SNAP benefits lifted 17% of participating households above the poverty line in FY 2023.

Indeed, every $1 spent yields $1.50 in economic activity.

"SNAP benefits are a crucial part of the revenue necessary to keep grocery stores open and functioning, especially independent grocers and stores in rural areas," said Jack Lynch of BerlinRosen, a public relations and marketing firm representing some New York grocers. "With looming cuts, many stores will need to cut back on hours, limit their offerings or may be in danger of closing entirely."

In related news, the federal government announced Friday, Oct. 31, that it would use $450 million in customs revenue to buttress the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC). According to The New York Times, some 67 million women and small children participate in WIC, including 41% of all infants born in the United States.

The Importance of Trust and Estate Planning

Understanding Our Clients' Needs

Cummings & Lockwood attorneys have considerable experience assisting individuals, families and business owners develop comprehensive estate plans and translate their success into a meaningful and lasting legacy.

As a result, we understand the variety of issues our clients face and the inevitable questions that arise when planning for the future:

- Who will manage my assets and affairs if I am unable to do so and/or after my death?
- How do I provide for my surviving spouse, as well as for my children and grandchildren?
- How do I protect my personal, financial and business assets?
- What is the best way to transition my wealth or business to the next generation?
- How do I minimize or avoid significant taxes?
- Should I donate money to various charities or establish a private foundation or other charitable entity?

Core Components of an Estate Plan

The core elements of an estate plan include:

- Will: A legal document that specifies how you want your assets distributed after your death and can name an executor to manage your estate and guardians for minor children.

- Trusts: A legal arrangement to hold and manage assets for beneficiaries. A living trust, for example, can help avoid the lengthy probate process.
- Powers of Attorney: Grants someone the authority to make financial and legal decisions on your behalf if you become unable to do so yourself.
- Healthcare Directives: Also known as a living will or advance health care directive, this document states your wishes for medical care, especially if you are terminally ill or incapacitated.
- Beneficiary Designations: The process of naming individuals who will directly inherit specific assets, such as life insurance policies and retirement accounts, outside of a will.

How We Can Help

Cummings & Lockwood's private clients attorneys offer a full suite of services:

- Estate planning and administration
- Probate administration
- Trust formation and management
- Estate, income and gift tax planning
- Beneficiary representation
- Fiduciary and trustee services

- Wealth protection planning
- Charitable giving and private foundation advice
- Special needs planning

Delivering Value to Our Clients

Our estate planning attorneys can help clients:

- Achieve peace of mind that their family members will be taken care of and protected
- Ensure that their assets are distributed in accordance with their wishes and in a seamless, tax-efficient manner
- Protect their assets from creditors and from their heirs' creditors
- Minimize state and federal gift and estate taxes
- Efficiently fund their charitable causes
- Ensure the proper care of minors and disabled family members
- Provide stability and management during times of incapacity
- Avoid probate in multiple states
- Pass their legacy on to their heirs
- Support responsible behavior by future generations

Yonkers food drive continues after Trump administration announces partial SNAP funding

BY PETER KATZ / pkatz@westfairinc.com

The citywide food drive that Yonkers Mayor Mike Spano announced on Oct. 31 is continuing even after the Trump administration on Nov. 3 announced that it would comply with a judge's order and release contingency SNAP (Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program) funds, a spokesperson in Spano's office told Westfair's Westchester County Business Journal.

The Trump administration said that it would be sending out partial SNAP payments beginning on Wednesday to comply with a court order that contingency funds be distributed. SNAP benefits are received by 2,962,913 people in New York state and 79,000 in Westchester with approximately 10,270 in Yonkers. About 42 million Americans receive SNAP benefits. The administration said that the contingency fund has only about $4.5 billion left in it, which is not enough for full SNAP payments in November.

Spano stood alongside public officials, city department heads, and representatives of community organizations at Yonkers City Hall to announce the food drive. He urged Yonkers residents to take action by donating nonperishable food items to the nonprofit Feeding Westchester. To support this effort, donation boxes will be placed in various place in Yonkers for the collection.

"In the face of these benefit changes, we must come together as a community," Spano said. "Feeding Westchester is a lifeline for thousands of families, and now more than ever, they need our help to meet the growing demand. Whether you're a resident, a business owner, or a community leader, you have the power to make a difference. Let's show what Yonkers is made of."

Spano called on officials in Washington resolve the SNAP funding issue.

"You can't play chess with peoples' lives, knowing that their well-being is on the line," Spano said. "Here in Yonkers, we see the ripple effects from delayed federal support to uncertainty for those who depend on vital services. Our residents expect leadership, not gridlock."

Food donation bins were to be set up at: Yonkers City Hall, 40 South Broadway; Yonkers PAL, 127 North Broadway; Riverfront Library, 1 Larkin Center; Grinton I. Will Library, 1500 Central Park Ave., Crestwood Library, 16 Thompson St.

Tami Wilson, CEO of Feeding Westchester, said, "I can't imagine the stress and anxiety our neighbors are feeling right now with the loss of federal paychecks and the uncertainty of SNAP benefits not being funded in just a few days. To worry about where your next meal will come from, especially as we approach a holiday centered on food, gratitude, love, and family is something no one should ever have to face."

Spano invited local organizations, businesses, and faith communities to join the citywide initiative with their own collection spots by contacting Dr. Dwanita Crosby at his office.

Rockland County, five towns urge monetary donations to food pantries

BY PETER KATZ / pkatz@westfairinc.com

NEW CITY, NY — In light of the ongoing federal government shutdown expected to cause a lapse in Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits on Nov. 1, the County of Rockland government and the towns of Clarkstown, Haverstraw, Orangetown, Ramapo and Stony Point are asking residents to make a monetary donation to local food pantries.

With approximately 19,000 households that include 54,562 children and adults relying on SNAP benefits, pantries are expecting a wave of need if benefits lapse. All donations, money and food, will be provided to Rockland Community Against Hunger, which represents 40+ pantries.

According to the Regional Food Bank, every $1 donated to a local food pantry enables them to purchase $8 to $10 worth of food (4 meals) from the Regional Food Bank because of their access to donated or discounted food.

"County residents and community minded businesses are encouraged to join us in assisting our neighbors," the county government said in an Oct. 30 statement. "Food pantry purchasing power can be significantly stronger than retail purchasing power, making monetary donations extremely critical at this time."

To make a monetary donation click here.

Rockland Community Against Hunger steering committee will determine how donations are distributed within Rockland based on need & impact.

As food pantries and non-profits prepare for a sharp increase in families seeking assistance, volunteers will also be needed to help sort food donations, prepare packages, assist with distribution, help transport goods, and more.

Sign up to volunteer here.

In addition to urging monetary donations, the County of Rockland is launching a Countywide Food Drive in partnership with all five towns to support SNAP recipients and others facing food insecurity.

"Every $1 donated creates up to four meals for Rockland families in need."

Donation bins will be available at the following locations:

- Robert L. Yeager Health Center Building A Lobby 50 Sanatorium Road, Pomona
- Allison-Parris County Office Building 11 New Hempstead Road, New City
- Town of Clarkstown Town Hall 10 Maple Ave., New City

Vitale 'sets the record straight' on facts of affordable housing project expenditure

FAIRFIELD – Following the Oct. 29 Board of Selectmen approval to use $570,000 of the Affordable Housing Trust Fund to go toward the development of a $26 million affordable 40-unit assisted living project, First Selectman Christine Vitale wanted to set the record straight.

The Fairfield Democratic Town Committee released a letter Vitale published on Patch.com Oct. 30 “correcting the misinformation” related to the project.

“Fairfield created an Affordable Housing Plan per state law that would cover 2022-2027, and committed to building 50 affordable homes during that time. This project is consistent with the Town’s plan, and is the fruition of bipartisan work across multiple administrations to meet the town’s affordable housing needs,” Vitale wrote.

“At our Oct. 29 meeting, the Board of Selectmen voted in alignment with the Fairfield Affordable Housing Committee (2-0-1, with Vitale and Democratic Selectman Marcy Spolyar voting for and Republican Brenda Kupchick abstaining) who voted on this project in a publicly noticed meeting on Oct. 8, to approve the expenditure of $570,000 from the developer-funded Affordable Housing Trust Fund to the non-profit, Fairfield Housing Corporation, for the development of a 100% affordable 40-unit assisted housing development at 980 High St.”

During the Board of Selectmen meeting, Selectman Brenda Kupchick, a Republican, insinuated the town was not transparent about the process behind approving the transfer of the funds to the Fairfield Housing Corp. She later unsuccessfully attempted to table the decision.

“There’s a lot of questions about it not being transparent,” Kupchick said. “I personally think we should table the item. The Affordable Housing Committee should have a full meeting.

It would be in the interest of the town and hold a public meeting of the Affordable Housing Committee.

There is a lot of mistrust. People from around town are whipped up.”

Kupchick echoed the concern of High Street neighbors, some of who were present at the Oct. 29 Board of Selectmen meeting.

“We did receive a tremendous amount of emails and lot of people are thinking this is coming out taxpayer money,” she added. “People may not understand completely that this is 100% affordable and that we are under a mandate by the State of Connecticut. There is a lot of misdirected anger. I’m angry. I tried for 10 years to change the 8-30g law.

“We do have an affordable problem in town. We have seniors that have been on lists for years and years.”

One of those residents who wants more transparency is James Leask, a High Street resident.

“I am firmly on the side of Selectman Kupchick of having a meeting that is public,” he said at the Oct. 29 meeting. “To gain the public’s trust again, we should have a meeting where all members of the community can communicate about this. Progress is made with cooperation. There’s give and take.”

After Kupchick made her remarks on transparency, town Community and Economic Development Director Mark Barnhart corrected Kupchick.

“For the record I want to note the Affordable Housing Committee did have a publicly noticed meeting where this was an item on the agenda,” Barnhart said. “It was videotaped. People were able to see the video of the discussion. We had a quorum. The vote was 4 in favor, one opposed and two abstentions.”

In the Vitale letter, the first selectman laid out the reasons for the board’s actions:

“This project represents what Fairfield does best — coming together to create thoughtful, responsible solutions that strengthen our community,” she wrote. “By supporting quality, permanently affordable housing, we are honoring our commitment to keep Fairfield a place where everyone can belong — seniors who’ve built their lives here, young families starting out, and residents with special needs who deserve to live with dignity and support.

“This is a plan built on collaboration, transparency, and care for our neighbors — a smart investment in Fairfield’s future that reflects our shared values of inclusion, stability, and opportunity for all.”

Vitale included a FAQ, of sorts, on the project in order to “set the record straight.”

- Is the $570,000 taxpayer money?

No, this is not taxpayer money. Developers pay fees into the trust fund when their projects don’t contribute to meeting Fairfield’s affordable housing needs. Funds in the Housing Trust Fund cannot be transferred to cover other line items in the town’s operating budget; they must be used to promote affordable housing in Fairfield. Before the vote, the trust fund was more than $1 million.

- Is this project bad for the environment?

This project has been through many changes to address the concerns raised by the Inland Wetlands Committee. The developers worked very closely with the town in a collaborative process to make changes to the design so it would not adversely affect the parcel’s wetlands.

- Will it be an eyesore?

- The roof line of the buildings will only be 18 inches taller than any newly built houses on the street. The historic Judd homestead building will be preserved and be used as a community center for residents and office space for staff.

- Who is developing this project?

The Fairfield Housing Corp., a non-profit developer under the Fairfield Housing Authority.

What impact will this project have on the Town’s 8-30G (a state affordable housing statute) moratorium progress?

We need approximately 191 more housing unit equivalent (HUE) points to achieve our next moratorium. Once completed, the High Street project would contribute 81 HUE points, nearly 42% of the remaining total that is needed. Further delaying construction of this approved project would put the town at risk of not achieving our second moratorium which would enable developers to once again bypass our local zoning regulations.

History of 980 High St.

The Fairfield Housing Corp purchased this property, which is 2.5 acres, in 2018. The corporation then applied for and received town Plan and Zoning Commission in February 2020 to construct the Judd Homestead at Russo Estates. They subsequently received Inland and Wetlands approval in October 2024.

The project consists of five buildings, each of which contain eight rental units. All first-floor units are barrier-free and wheelchair accessible. (They will remain affordable with restrictive covenants. They will be available to those who with income within 30% and 80% of area median), according to Barnhart.

UI files petitions Siting Council to reconsider monopoles plan rejection

BY GARY LARKIN / glarkin@westfairinc.com

United Illuminating has continued its fight to build monopoles along the Congress Street railroad transmission line between Fairfield and Bridgeport.

On the heels of an FOIA request of internal communications involved in the Oct. 16 Connecticut Siting Council rejection of the project, the utility submitted a 15-page petition to the council asking for a reconsideration of the decision.

In its request UI asked the Siting Council to reconsider the decision not to issue a Certificate of Environmental Compatibility and Public Need in connection with the Fairfield to Congress Railroad Transmission Line 115-kV Rebuild Project.

The Siting Council has 25 days to decide whether it will reconsider its decision per this motion. If they do decide to reconsider, then they would have 90 days to issue a new decision that either affirms or denies their Oct. 16 decision.

The primary reason for UI's Motion for Reconsideration is because the Connecticut Siting Council did not provide any basis for its denial of the project, the utility stated in the petition. They claim the decision runs against Connecticut state law and leaves UI without a path forward for designing the project.

"Without any explanation as to why the Project was denied, UI is left... with no guidance as to what, if any, issues the Council had with the proposed solution to the important public need the Project sought to address," the petition reads. "And the public is left with aging, deteriorating infrastructure that poses significant safety and reliability concerns.

"The Council acted illegally and arbitrarily in flipping its vote with absolutely no reasons provided."

According to UI, "As the Council has repeatedly found, there is a strong public need for this Project, which will replace 60-year-old, deteriorated UI transmission infrastructure, which sits atop 100-year-old, CTDOT owned railroad catenaries, with new infrastructure that conforms with modern safety and construction standards in order to more safely and reliably provide electric transmission in Fairfield County and the ISO-NE region."

The petition further states: "The Siting Council should grant this Motion, reconsider the Application and approve it based on the record and law. If it fails to do so, UI reserves all rights going forward (including but not limited to taking an appeal and seeking discovery) in order to determine why three Council members inexplicably changed their votes."

The council denied UI's application in a 5-3 vote on Oct. 16 after first denying a request by Fairfield, Bridgeport and state lawmakers to delay the decision for another six months. It was the third such vote the council took – including two straw votes – regarding the concerning the company's application to the council for a certificate of environmental compatibility and public need for the Fairfield to Congress Railroad Transmission Line 115-kV Rebuild Project.

"The Council acted illegally and arbitrarily in flipping its vote with absolutely no reasons provided."

— UI Motion for Reconsideration

In the end, three Siting Council members switched their votes. The only member (state Department of Energy and Environmental Protection designee Brian Golembiewski) to offer any explanation for the denial said that his department supported the Hannon-Morisette Alternative. However, the HMA was defeated in court in April 2025, and Member Golembiewski had not supported it when it came up for a vote in 2024; he had abstained.

"The final vote means that three members (Golembiewski, Chance Carter and Dan Lynch) who voted in favor of the Project at the September 4, 2025 meeting, switched their vote a little over a month later and voted to deny the Project without offering any explanation for the change," the UI petition reads.

"Two weeks later, at the Council's Feb. 15, 2024 meeting, the Council reviewed the findings of fact, opinion, decision and order and conclusions of law... Member Golembiewski did not vote in favor of the [Hannon-Morisette Alternative] as he had previously, but instead abstained."

Pressure in Peekskill for affordable care premium subsidies

BY PETER KATZ / pkatz@westfairinc.com

Pugsley Park in Peekskill is where advocates of extending government subsidies for Affordable Care Act (ACA) premiums gathered to add their voices to those putting pressure on Republicans in Congress and the Trump administration to prevent millions of Americans from losing health care coverage because they can no longer afford it. It's estimated that 20 million people will see their health care costs soar while 4 million lose coverage entirely when ACA premiums go up for 2026.

Democrats on Capitol Hill have been demanding that Republicans negotiate continuation of the ACA subsidies before they will vote to end the government shutdown. Open enrollment for ACA coverage, also known as Obamacare, began this past Saturday, and millions of Americans were beginning to learn that their health care costs will double or even triple without renewed federal support.

In New York, more than 118,000 residents on the state ACA marketplace are expected to pay an average of $900 more annually, and 860,000 New Yorkers risk losing their insurance altogether.

"Stripping tens of thousands of New Yorkers of their health care to fund tax cuts for the wealthy isn't good governance, it's simply cruel," said State Sen. Pete Harckham. "Years of progress are being undone in just months, and it's working families and seniors who will pay the price for Trump's reckless policies."

State Assembly Member Dana Levenberg said, "It's shameful that in a nation as wealthy as ours, working people are begging for help to pay for medical costs. In the absence of a shift to a single-payer system and guaranteed health care, the very least our federal government can do is help people pay for their health insurance premiums, which are spiking beyond control, and certainly people's ability to pay. Congress must extend the ACA tax credits now and get back to working for the people."

Dylan Wheeler, NY Congressional District 17 regional organizing director for the group Empire State Voices, told those who had gathered, "Already stretched budgets will be strained to their breaking point, while others will be unable to shoulder the burden and lose their health insurance entirely."

Angel Gray, representing the Westchester Children's Association said that the organization joins in the demands that Congress protect ACA subsidies and safeguard the stability and well-being of families who depend on them.

Rashida Tyler of the New York State Council of Churches expressed the viewpoint that health care is a moral issue as well as a policy issue.

"Our faith teaches us that caring for our neighbors is a sacred duty, yet Congress's inaction threatens to pull the rug out from under working families," Tyler said. "We cannot let bureaucracy and political games force parents, seniors, and struggling individuals to choose between their health and their financial survival."

Sparrow Tobin, president of the Hudson Valley Area Labor Federation spoke on behalf of the 115,000 union members in the federation in saying, "Health care is a human right, not a bargaining chip. The labor movement in the Hudson Valley will continue to fight for what's right. On behalf of working people in Columbia, Greene, Sullivan, Ulster, Dutchess, Orange, and Rockland Counties, we will not break."

New businesses planned for Yorktown Heights shopping center

BY PETER KATZ / pkatz@westfairinc.com

The owner of a shopping center at 380 Downing Drive in Yorktown Heights wants to divide a space formerly occupied by the Turco's Super Ranch, which subsequently became an Uncle Giuseppe's market when Uncle Giuseppe's acquired Turco's, so that it can be used by three businesses.

380 Downing Drive LLC plans for two of the spaces to be used by retailers and the third space to be used by a restaurant. The shopping center is on a 3.8-acres parcel.

Joseph Riina of Site Design Consultants based in Yorktown Heights presented plans for dividing the super-market space to the Yorktown Planning Board. He said that in addition to dividing the former supermarket space into three separate units, there would be a new loading dock, parking improvements, and an updated building façade with signage for each of the new businesses.

Riina said that all details of the plan have not been worked out but he did want to begin the approval process by bringing the proposal before the board.

"As part of this proposed renovation, the facade of those stores will be updated by removing the bowed roof section and constructing new storefronts," Riina told the Planning Board. "The rear of the building will receive a new addition which will provide a loading area for one of the new store units. This addition will require a setback variance. The parking lot will also be modified where the entrance on Veteran's Road, closest to Downing Drive will be eliminated and relocated to be in alignment with the main driveway which traverses the front of the building."

Riina said that leases have been signed for the new businesses and one of them is Torrcoco, which is a plumbing, piping, HVAC and kitchen and bath supply company and also operates bath, kitchen and lighting design centers. It has nine locations in Connecticut, two in Massachusetts and outlets in Port Chester and Amenia, New York. There also would be an auto parts store and a restaurant, which he said possibly would be operating as a steakhouse.

The restaurant would occupy 7,939 square feet. Advanced Auto would occupy 7,540 square feet. Torrcoco Plumbing would occupy 13,334 square feet. A new 10-foot-wide concrete sidewalk with curb would be installed along the front of the building.

Riina pointed out that the shopping center already has a waiver for not having the number of required parking spaces and the new businesses should not present an extra burden because they draw people at different times and do not have the same level of foot traffic as did Turco's or Uncle Giuseppe's.

Riina described the addition of a loading dock in the rear of the building to serve Torrcoco as creating a tight space but said that turning movements have been checked and there is enough clearance for tractor trailer trucks to maneuver. He said that the location of garbage dumpsters hasn't been determined. Members of the board offered to move ahead and schedule a required public hearing on the application.

Riina indicated that there would be additional changes requested for the shopping center in a second phase.

Sally’s Apizza coming to Danbury Fair with state’s biggest restaurant in 2027

BY PAMELA BROWN

DANBURY – The Danbury Fair, one of Connecticut’s premier shopping destinations, will be the site of the pizza capital of the state as Sally’s Apizza will join the culinary selection there in two years.

The New Haven-based restaurant announced construction will begin at the mall to create the state’s largest pizza restaurant. The restaurant also has numerous other locations including Fairfield, Stamford, Wethersfield and Farmington. Coming soon will be opening sites in Norwalk, South Windsor, Newington, and at Foxwoods Resort Casino in Mashantucket.

“Danbury is thrilled to welcome Sally’s Apizza, an iconic Connecticut name, to our community,” said Mayor Roberto Alves. “We truly appreciate our strong partnership with Danbury Fair’s leadership as they continue to reimagine and invest in the future of this destination.”

Construction of the new 8,500-square-foot restaurant will begin in 2026 for a tentative 2027 grand opening. The restaurant will occupy a key location between Dick’s Sporting Goods, The Cheese-cake Factory, and Round1 Bowling & Arcade.

“Located in a prime position at Danbury Fair, the new Sally’s Apizza restaurant design brings fresh energy to the property and adds an inviting new destination for the community,” said Mackenzie Fontaine, Danbury Fair general manager. Some of the features of Sally’s Apizza include a full cocktail bar, unique music memorabilia adorning the walls, and classic Italian favorites made “The Sally’s Way.”

Sally’s Apizza (pronounced “ah-beetz” as a nod to the Italian old school term and the traditional New-Haven-Style pizza) was founded in 1938 by Savatore “Sally” Consiglio in New Haven. It offers authentic handcrafted New Haven-style pizza based on original recipes made in custom-designed ovens.

The restaurant is acclaimed by customers all over the world for its distinctive tomato sauce and chewy, crispy crust with an iconic oven-kissed char. The brand has been expanding throughout the Northeast with an elevated bar restaurant experience featuring its world-famous apizza, Italian entrees, pastas, salads, craft cocktails, and more.

“We’re thrilled to see Danbury Fair welcome Sally’s Apizza. This exciting addition highlights Macerich’s commitment to bringing high-quality dining and destination experiences to our region,” said Maura Ruby, president and CEO, Greater Danbury Chamber of Commerce. “The development will generate multifaceted job opportunities, from construction and vendor services to restaurant staffing, and will expand Backus Avenue’s entertainment and dining options. It will serve as a welcoming destination for families and visitors alike.”

According to Ruby, the new restaurant will have a strong economic impact.

“As the city’s No. 1 tax generator, Danbury Fair continues to be a vital economic engine, and the Greater Danbury Chamber of Commerce values our strong partnership with key economic players like Macerich as we support developments that strengthen our local economy and elevate our business community,” said Ruby. “This brand gives the surrounding regional market another reason to choose Danbury as their recreation and dining destination.”

Sally’s Apizza joins the dynamic retail mix at Danbury Fair, which includes Coach, Pop Mart, and Perfumania, along with future openings including Offline by Aerie and Jack & Jones set for completion by the end of 2025.

“With a premier restaurant space at the forefront of Danbury Fair, our leasing team was thoughtful in selecting a partner that reflects the quality and experience we aim to offer. Sally’s Apizza’s approach to food, design, and hospitality aligns seamlessly with our long-term vision for the center,” said Eric Bunyan, senior vice president of leasing, Macerich.

1 The Westchester-Bermuda connection landscape

Bermuda's growing airline, BermudAir, which was founded in 2023 by CEO Adam Scott, looked to Westchester County Airport (airport designator HPN) as a good entry point for the New York Metro area and started nonstop service between HPN and Bermuda on August 23, 2023. As the airline expanded, adding two more aircraft to its original fleet of two, it expanded the airports it served and in October of this year announced that it would be adding service at Newark International Airport and LaGuardia. At the same time, it announced that as of Oct. 25, it would no longer serve HPN.

“Westchester is my favorite spot on our destination map... Westchester is our most important market from our frequent flyer perspective.”

— Adam Scott,
BermudAir CEO

It didn't take long for the airline to make a course correction and announce that it would continue the Westchester connection, creating what it called the "New York Triangle" with Westchester, LaGuardia and Newark, a play on the infamous "Bermuda Triangle."

"Westchester is my favorite spot on our destination map," Scott told Westfair's Westchester County Business Journal. "I've always been enamored of Westchester because of the ease and convenience of the airport. Westchester is our most important market from our frequent flyer perspective."

Scott said that there are a number of people in Westchester and up into Connecticut who have interests in Bermuda, either business or personal, and became regular users of the airline.

"We have a number of passengers from Westchester who have flown with us 50, 60, 70 times," Scott said. "A lot of people do commute between Westchester and Bermuda. It's quicker to get sometimes from Westchester to Bermuda than to get from Westchester to JFK or LaGuardia."

Scott described a Founders Club for the airline that he said is strictly limited to 100 members.

"They're really the first group that threw their full support behind us and pre-purchased a great deal of capacity," Scott said. "More than half of those Founders members are based in Westchester County and the surrounding areas. It's an amazing bridge that we have between Westchester and Bermuda."

Scott said that in preserving the Westchester-Bermuda route they're currently operating three times a week, on Tuesdays Thursdays and Sundays. The flights are scheduled to take two hours.

Scott described a current promotion offering free airfare between Westchester, LaGuardia and Newark for travelers who book a total vacation package through the airline.

"Part of our commitment and my personal commitment to the island is to show what a fantastic destination Bermuda is and how accessible it is," Scott said. "We curate travel packages putting together hotels and well as the flights. We also offer access to some of the golf courses. We have seven world-class golf courses and offer the ability to book packages that include golf and other activities on the island."

Scott said that he is a native of Canada who is a graduate of the London School of Economics and Political Science, worked in finance for JPMorgan and Goldman Sachs and lived in Europe and the U.S. before taking up residency in Bermuda.

"Starting a business in such a capital intensive and regulatory heavy industry can be daunting, but that being said it's also the most rewarding experience I've had," Scott said. "When we fly passengers and they see what we offer on the aircraft, the hospitality of Bermuda and her people, it's hugely rewarding. We started with only two aircraft. Now we have four aircraft. We've had zero flight cancellations in the past five months as a result of investing heavily in our fleet."

BermudAir started with two Embraer E175 twin-jet aircraft flying three direct routes between Bermuda L.F. Wade International Airport (BDA) and Boston Logan International Airport (BOS), Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport (FLL) and Westchester County Airport (HPN). It now has added two Embraer 190AR-E1 with 96 passenger configurations. They have 2-by-2 seating with 1-by-1 seating in business class.

According to 2024 statistics, Bermuda had 743,490 visitors, 203,080 of whom arrived by air. Just under 33% of the visitors arriving by air came from New York.

"We're driven by economics, of course, and Bermuda is a fairly small island but it's a robust economy with leisure business and returning friends and family traffic but the critical thing for us is to have the right sized aircraft for the markets in which we operate and to operate at the right frequency for the market. The fact that the Embraer airplanes have two-by-two seating in economy and one-by-one in business makes the aircraft really comfortable and a better experience at so many levels."

Scott said that they have just launched AnguillAir, which will fly to Anguilla from Boston, Newark, and Baltimore. There also will be a connection to the island of St. Barts.

"We'll continue to grow our fleets," Scott said. "As we continue to grow we'll be able to offer more frequency. We'll also in a longer term look at other islands as well that we can service just as we are with Bermuda and will be with Anguilla."

In the Roman Catholic Church's Jubilee year, not everyone is jubilant

BY GEORGETTE GOUVEIA / ggouveia@westfairinc.com

Every 25 years, the Roman Catholic Church proclaims an “Ordinary Jubilee” for the faithful to gather in Rome. This year’s Jubilee, which is expected to draw between 30 million and 35 million people by its end on Jan. 6, is dedicated to forgiveness, social justice and debt relief for the world’s most vulnerable.

To prepare for the event, Italy poured roughly $5.8 billion into infrastructure, with most of that going to its political capital, Rome. But while the country hopes to add to its growing tourism sector, which accounts for 11% to 13% of GDP and supports more than three million jobs, not everyone is jubilant, a guide told us as we made our way from Milan, the nation’s financial capital; to Venice, Florence, Assisi and Rome as part of the Church of the Sacred Heart in Hartsdale’s challenging “Pilgrimage of Hope” (Oct.21-30).

Small business owners in particular worry about getting their slice of the Jubilee pie as secular tourists stay away, yielding the field to tightly scheduled pilgrims with no time to shop or sip latte in cafés, and infrastructure projects add to crowding and traffic woes. Retail lovers that we are, we experienced this painfully at every stop on a tour that required us to walk five brisk miles every day, wait in long lines and drive for hours by bus. Our retail withdrawal was perhaps never more acute than in Venice, where storm Benjamin underscored the Adriatic city’s identity as a pastel waterworld, threaded by teal canals, more than 400 bridges and cozy cobblestone streets lined with shops selling food, leather goods, carnival masks, Venetian scenes and Murano glass – all of which we had to pass by. Given that so many shops seem to sell the same goods, we wondered how they all stay afloat, no pun intended. In Italy, shops don’t go out of business, our Venetian guide told us. Rather, new owners appear.

“Venice is a city lost in myth,” she added. That may be true of Italy as a whole, where the marketing of its fabled culture – the religious as well as the secular – remains a great strength. If some business owners are challenged by the Jubilee, those in communities whose lifeblood lies in a religious identity may see more financial benefit. At Assisi – the birth and resting place of the ever-popular St. Francis, founder of the Franciscan order, who has been adopted by the modern ecology movement – we witnessed not only the transition from the early to the high medieval period in the frescoes on the life of Francis by Cimabue and his student, Giotto, but what it means for a community to have at least three saints present.

At the Church of Santa Maria Maggiore, not far from the Basilica of St. Clare, housing the remains of the Francis-inspired founder of the Poor Clares, young people flocked to the preserved body of St. Carlo Acutis, the 15-year-old computer programmer who died of leukemia in 2006 and was canonized Sept. 7 of this year. Known as “the first gamer saint,” Carlo lies in a transparent case dressed in jeans and a warm-up jacket, his black hair tousled – frozen in time, framed by the past, forever young. At the back of the church, you can buy a poster (two euros) bearing his image that contains this quote from him: “While we are all born originals, many die as photocopies” – a tribute to his place as a rock-star saint for the technology age. At San Giovanni Rotondo, more of the faithful gathered on long lines to view the preserved body of St. Padre Pio (1887-1968), a Capuchin Franciscan priest whose mystical life bore striking parallels to that of St. Francis. Those parallels are explored in the angular, gilt, mosaic Padre Pio Pilgrimage Church built by Italian architect Renzo Piano. Stalls lining the church complex carry devotional objects related to the saint as well as to St. Michael the Archangel, patron of the Roman Catholic Church, who is said to have appeared twice in the area recently. Padre Pio images also grace local hotels. The saint keeps San Giovanni Rotondo thriving, a priest told us.

In Rome, where it was impossible to get to some sites because of the crowds, another guide suggested that we not discount the Pope Leo XIV factor as well. The Chicago-born Pope Leo comes from a country whose church, patrons and foundations are the biggest contributors to the Vatican, which remains highly bureaucratic and financially troubled despite reforms initiated by Pope Francis. Now the quietly charismatic Leo – a math teacher by training and temperament who succeeded the ebullient Francis on May 8 – is the face of the church and its Jubilee, smiling shyly from postcards and calendars in the gift shops of the neo-classical Archbasilica of St. John Lateran, the pope’s church in his role as the bishop of Rome. It’s going to take a lot more, however, than the new Pope Leo Collection of merchandise to fill the Vatican coffers. Indeed, it may depend on a saintly miracle.

With its tony boutiques and historic architecture, the Galleria Vittorio Emanuele II is part of what makes Milan the financial capital of Italy and, according to The New York Times, possibly “the best-dressed place in the world.” But pilgrims have little time for such luxuries, frustrating shops and shoppers alike. Photographs by Georgette Gouveia unless otherwise indicated.

Eye on Small Business: LogicPrep

BY JEREMY WAYNE / jwayne@westfairinc.com

LogicPrep is a global college admissions consultancy that delivers a premium, full-service experience for families worldwide. Westfair's Westchester County Business Journal enjoyed a recent exchange with its inspirational founder and CEO Lindsay Tanne Howe, who told us about the consultancy, its newly opened office at HAYVN in Greenwich and what makes it stand out in an increasingly competitive and sophisticated niche market.

Here are the highlights:

What inspired you to start your college admissions consultancy in 2008, and how has your vision for the company evolved since its founding?

"There really wasn't a grand plan; I was just a kid helping kids. As an English major at Harvard, I loved writing and storytelling. I started helping younger students from my hometown with their essays and realized how much I enjoyed being part of this chapter in their lives — helping them tell their stories and, in doing so, discover themselves. What began as a summer job has grown into something much larger."

Can you share some key milestones in LogicPrep's growth since its inception? How has the demand for your services changed over the years?

"LogicPrep has evolved into a one-stop, comprehensive resource for families navigating the entire journey from middle school through college. We now begin working with students as early as eighth or ninth grade, supporting not just the college admissions process but every academic milestone along the way — from SAT and ACT preparation to subject tutoring and essay development."

What significant changes have you observed in the college admissions process since you founded your consultancy?

"The college admissions landscape has become far more competitive, and the applicant pool is more global and larger than ever — in part due to test-optional policies, which have encouraged more students to apply to more selective schools."

How has technology influenced the college admissions process and your consultancy's services? Have you adopted any new tools or platforms to assist your clients?

"Over 10 years ago, we began developing our own software to help students, parents, tutors, and advisors stay organized throughout the entire process. That said, we've always believed technology is only as powerful as the people behind it."

How do you recruit and select your college counselors? What qualifications or experiences do you look for in potential team members?

"Experience on the other side of the desk. All of our advisors are former admissions officers from top universities — including Harvard,

"There really wasn't a grand plan; I was just a kid helping kids."

— Lindsay Tanne, Founder and CEO, LogicPrep

Stanford, Columbia, Duke, MIT, and Vanderbilt. But beyond credentials...our advisors are the kind of people who put families at ease and reduce stress rather than add to it."

What are some of the main challenges LogicPrep faces in the current college admissions landscape? How do you navigate these challenges?

"One of the biggest challenges right now is the sheer amount of misinformation circulating about college admissions. Information has never been more accessible — or more confusing."

Can you tell us about your recent move to HAYVN in Greenwich? What prompted the relocation, and how does it support your business goals?

"We opened a small space in Greenwich last year to see if we could be helpful to that community and the response was incredible. While we continue to support students online around the world, it feels wonderful to have a true home base here in Greenwich."

How do you scale your fees for different services offered? What factors influence your pricing model?

"Our work is highly individualized. Every family's goals are unique, and we tailor our programs accordingly." Besides college counseling, does LogicPrep have other sources of income?

"In addition to our one-on-one programs, LogicPrep also offers group classes through our partnership with Chappaqua Continuing Education, which is especially meaningful to me since Horace Greeley (School) is my alma mater."

Lastly, Lindsay — as a global consultancy, can you share some of the most unusual or "exotic" colleges — perhaps in faraway countries or locations — you've advised students on?

"We're seeing a growing number of students expand their horizons and apply to universities abroad, particularly in Europe. The Common App has made it easier than ever to apply internationally to schools such as the University of St. Andrews in Scotland. In recent years, we've helped students enroll at Bocconi University in Milan and IE University in Madrid, among others. It's been exciting to watch this shift as students are increasingly drawn to the global perspective and adventure that come with studying overseas."

AGs James, Tong others sue Linda McMahon and her department

BY PETER KATZ / pkatz@westfairinc.com

New York Attorney General Letitia James, Connecticut Attorney General William Tong and 20 other attorneys general have filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts against the U.S. Department of Education and Linda McMahon in her official capacity as secretary of the Department of Education. McMahon used to be CEO of World Wrestling Entertainment (WWE) in Stamford.

The lawsuit alleges that the defendants unlawfully restricting eligibility for the Public Service Loan Forgiveness (PSLF) program, which allows government and nonprofit employees to have their federal student loans forgiven after ten years of service.

The defendants put into effect a new federal rule that would make entire state governments, hospitals, schools, and nonprofit organizations ineligible for PSLF if the government unilaterally determines they have done things that the Trump administration doesn't like. This can include support for immigrants, gender-affirming health care, or diversity programs.

The lawsuit argues that the new rule is not only unlawful but also politically motivated. It says the rule is intended to punish states and organizations that the administration does not like. The PSLF program was established by Congress in 2007.

"Public Service Loan Forgiveness was created as a promise to teachers, nurses, firefighters, and social workers that their service to our communities would be honored," James said. "Instead, this administration has created a political loyalty test disguised as a regulation. It is unjust and unlawful to cut off loan forgiveness for hardworking Americans based on ideology. I will not let our federal government punish New York's public servants for doing their jobs or standing up for our values."

On Oct. 31, the Department of Education finalized the new rule, which is scheduled to take effect in July of next year. James and the other attorneys general warn that entire classes of public workers such as teachers, health professionals or legal aid attorneys representing immigrants could suddenly lose PSLF eligibility through no fault of their own.

James points out that earlier this year, the U.S. Department of Justice sued New York over its "Protect Our Courts Act" — a state law ensuring that immigration enforcement does not deter people from seeking justice in state courts. Under the new PSLF rule, the attorneys general argue, the administration could claim that the "Protect Our Courts Act" constitutes a "substantial illegal purpose" and use it to deny loan forgiveness to thousands of New York public employees.

The attorneys general argue that the new rule is flatly illegal and that the law that created PSLF guarantees forgiveness for anyone who works full-time in qualifying public service. They note that the law does not grant the Department of Education to the power to make exceptions based on ideology nor the unfettered power to target specific state policies or social programs while exempting federal agencies from scrutiny.

The attorneys general are asking the federal court to declare the rule unlawful, vacate it, and bar the Department of Education from enforcing or implementing it.

In addition to James and Tong, the lawsuit was filed by the attorneys general of Arizona, California, Colorado, Delaware, Hawaii, Illinois, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, Oregon, Rhode Island, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, and the District of Columbia.

REAL ESTATE

83-acre estate in North Salem sells for $7.2M

BY PETER KATZ / pkatz@westfairinc.com

The Darlington Hall estate at 422 Hardscrabble Road in North Salem has been sold for $7,265,000, which Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices New England Properties says is the highest price recently paid for a property in the area. It was initially had been listed at $9.25 million. Property taxes were shown as $137,718 a year. The buyer and seller were not disclosed.

The property covers 83 acres and at the focal point is a 10,000-square-foot manor home that features an entry hall that has a 22-foot-high ceiling. The house features an indoor swimming pool with underground tunnel, a gym, home theater and 10 bedrooms of various dimensions. On the property is a horse barn with 11 stalls, groom's quarters, a jumping field, a fishing pond, orchards, a carriage house with two apartments, and more.

"Darlington Hall offers a unique opportunity in both character and acreage, coupled with unparalleled architectural design," Will Stuart of Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices New England Properties told Westfair's Westchester County Business Journal. "The buyers sought a property that offered this, along with privacy in an equestrian community within close proximity to New York City."

Stuart said he sees strength in the high-end real estate market throughout Darlington Hall estate.

Northern Westchester.

"The high-end market is setting records in Northern Westchester as a result of a tighter market in terms of inventory," Stuart said. "While properties in this sector tend have more luxury amenities, buyers are seeking properties that are completely one-of-a-kind. My team is consistently pressed to seek off-market opportunities before they even hit the market. While cash is always favorable, strong financing isn't discouraged. Buyers need to be prepared to move quickly in a market that demands readiness and flexibility."

The previous North Salem sale that approached Darlington Hall was a property at 22 Nash Road that in June 2024 sold for $7.25 million. In December 2024, 126 Vail Lane sold for $5.65 million, also represented by Will Stuart.

Mayor Alves grants $50 k in cannabis revenue to new Danbury Boys & Girls Club facility

BY PAMELA BROWN

DANBURY – The Boys & Girls Club is officially coming to Danbury in the form of The Clubhouse as part of an expansion of the Boys & Girls Club of Ridgefield. It is due to open in January 2026.

The Clubhouse, which will be located at the former Boughton Street YMCA, serves school-aged children in grades 1- 12 with a variety of programs and services to help them learn, grow, and thrive.

The expansion is made possible through Danbury Mayor Roberto Alves' pledge of $50,000 of cannabis tax revenue. "As a strong supporter of our youth, I believe the Danbury Clubhouse represents exactly the kind of investment our community deserves," said Mayor Alves.

The Clubhouse will occupy the former community center building owned by CIFIC at 12 Boughton Street.

The full-time Clubhouse will offer more young people access to a safe, welcoming, and enriching environment. According to their website, the Boys & Girls Club of Ridgefield is a youth activity center designed to offer programs for school-aged children after school and during vacations in five core areas: The Arts, Character & Leadership, Education, Health & Life Skills, and Sports, Fitness & Recreation.

The organization's mission is to "inspire and enable all young people to realize their full potential as productive, responsible and caring citizens." Programming will operate after-school, during school vacations, and throughout the summer.

"The opening of the Danbury Clubhouse marks the beginning of something truly special for this community. It represents a place where young people will discover their potential, build confidence, and find mentors who believe in them," said Kristin Goncalves, EVP, Boys & Girls Club of Ridgefield. "The City's support helps make that vision possible — and together, we're creating a space that will uplift youth and families for generations to come."

Since becoming mayor of Danbury in 2023, Mayor Alves has allocated cannabis tax revenue to programs that directly impact Danbury's youth, including the Harambee Center, Danbury Youth Services, Danbury

Student and Business Connection, and the recently announced MMA Youth Program led by World Champions Glover Teixeira and Alex Pereira.

"This Boys & Girls Club facility will give our pre-teens a safe, inspiring place to learn, grow, and connect through mentoring and meaningful activities," Alves said. "It's a place where kids can discover their potential and build confidence for the future."

The collaboration between the Boys & Girls Club and the City of Danbury was the result of a commitment from both to finding a way to serve Danbury families.

"When the Boys & Girls Club of Ridgefield first explored the opportunity to open a Clubhouse in Danbury, our first stop was City Hall to meet with Mayor Alves, State Rep. (Farley) Santos, and other local leaders. From the very beginning, we were welcomed with open arms and encouraged to bring this vision to life," said Mike Flynn, president and CEO, Boys & Girls Club of Ridgefield.

"Today, the City of Danbury's contribution to the Danbury Clubhouse is a powerful reflection of that continued support," he added. "Having the City as a partner in this endeavor is absolutely critical to its success and lays the foundation for a lasting and meaningful collaboration. This generous gift will go directly toward operations and programming — impacting the youth and families first hand and helping to ensure that the Danbury Clubhouse becomes a place of opportunity, belonging, and hope for years to come."

Southport office building put up for sale; last assessed at $2.6 M

BY GARY LARKIN / glarkin@westfairinc.com

SOUTHPORT — A three-story office building at 135 Rennell Drive that was last assessed at $2.6 million has been put on the block by its owner KYSU LLC. Choyce Peterson has been retained as exclusive sales agent for the property.

"135 Rennell Drive offers a rare combination of sophistication, convenience, and community appeal," said Scott Peterson, vice president of capital markets at Choyce Peterson.

"Opportunities to acquire a Southport office property of this caliber within walking distance of the train, local restaurants, and the waterfront are exceptionally limited."

The 8,315-square-foot property is home to such businesses as printing business Lindemeyr Central and marketing agency Pappas MacDonnell. It offers 30 parking spaces, including eight that are covered. The building is ideal for an owner-user or investor seeking a Southport investment property with immediate rental income from an existing second-floor tenant and additional leasing potential on the third floor, according to Choyce Peterson.

The property was last assessed for $2,593,900 in 2024 and was last sold in 1999 for $1.4 million, according to town property records.

Located one block from I-95 and Metro-North's Southport Station, the property provides connectivity to Stamford, Norwalk, and New York City. It is surrounded by boutique retail, beaches, the Country Club of Fairfield, and the Delamar Hotel.

"We have seen increasing demand among executives and professional service firms looking to move operations closer to home without compromising image or access," Peterson said. "This property fits that trend perfectly. It is professional yet welcoming and allows companies to tap into the Fairfield County talent pool while enjoying a truly local lifestyle."

Peterson, Inc. is a full-service commercial real estate brokerage firm with 30 years of experience advising building owners, investors, landlords, and tenants throughout the Tri-State area.

EVERYONE LOVES A COMEBACK

Paul Rivera got a
new lung and a new life.

Paul was one of those hardworking citizens who keep our fair city going. But then he got struck with pulmonary fibrosis, probably as a result of chemical exposure on the job. It was untreatable; his only hope was a lung transplant. And only one hospital, Montefiore Einstein, showed up to help. They got Paul a new lung, and they gave him a new life.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Candice Castro, Cassandra Castro, Kelly Castro and Kayla Castro
Registered Nurses
Montefiore Einstein and White Plains Hospital

The Castro family embodies a legacy of care, compassion and community service within Montefiore Health System. At the center is Candice Castro, who has worked nearly 40 years as a nurse at Montefiore's Jack D. Weiler Hospital in the Bronx. Her steady hands, calm reassurance and empathy have supported thousands of families during their most vulnerable moments. Her dedication extended beyond her shifts. She raised three daughters who witnessed her devotion to patients and pride in the profession. Inspired by her example, Cassandra, Kelly and Kayla Castro each became nurses. Today, they serve at Montefiore's Weiler Campus and White Plains Hospital, forming an extraordinary intergenerational team. Together, the Castros bring both wisdom and fresh energy to the bedside. They support one another through the challenges of nursing, from processing difficult cases to celebrating patient recoveries, while staying grounded in their purpose. The Castro family is a testament to how family values can shape a community. Their story shows that nursing is more than a career — it is a calling, and in their case, a shared legacy carried forward with pride and love.

COMPASSIONATE CONCIERGE DOCTOR

Lee Marcus, M.D.
CEO and Medical Director
Impact Health NY

Dr. Lee S. Marcus is a board-certified cardiologist and the CEO and founder of Impact Health and concierge medical practice that is transforming health care by shifting the focus from reactive treatments to proactive, preventive medicine. While Marcus manages the full spectrum of cardiovascular conditions, his expertise lies in early detection and disease prevention. As president of Preventive Cardiology of New York, which he established in 2015, he integrated cutting-edge diagnostics and risk assessment tools to identify cardiovascular disease at its earliest stages. His advanced training at Columbia University and Yale University equips him with the specialized expertise to deliver an unparalleled level of cardiovascular care. He is a Fellow of the American College of Cardiology and The American Society for Preventive Cardiology.

Andrea V. Barrio

Attending, Breast Service, Department of Surgery
Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center

Dr. Andrea V. Barrio, MD, FACS is an attending with the Breast Service in the Department of Surgery at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center and an associate professor of surgery at Weill Cornell Medical College. She earned a bachelor's degree and a medical degree from the University of California, Los Angeles, where she was elected to the Alpha Omega Alpha Honor Medical Society. She completed her surgical residency at NewYork-Presbyterian/Weill Cornell Medical Center, followed by a breast surgical oncology fellowship at Memorial Sloan Kettering. Barrio specializes in the surgical treatment of breast cancer. Her research focuses on reducing the morbidity of breast cancer treatment, particularly lymphedema, a complication of extensive axillary surgery. She has led and co-led several studies examining the incidence and risk factors for lymphedema, including the role of inflammation in its development, and has studied the use of neoadjuvant chemotherapy in node-positive patients to reduce the need for axillary lymph node dissection. She is principal investigator on a lymphedema screening study of women undergoing breast cancer treatment to prospectively determine the incidence of upper-extremity lymphedema after axillary lymph node dissection and to evaluate the role of inflammatory biomarkers, along with traditional patient and treatment factors, in its pathogenesis. She is also principal investigator on a multi-institutional prospective study evaluating the accuracy of sentinel lymph node biopsy after neoadjuvant chemotherapy in patients with locally advanced breast cancer.

Dahniel Sastow

Hematology, Oncology fellow
The Tisch Cancer Institute at Mount Sinai Hospital

Dr. Dahniel Sastow grew up in New Rochelle, N.Y., and earned his medical degree from the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai. He completed his internship and residency in internal medicine at Mount Sinai and is now a second-year hematology/oncology fellow at the Tisch Cancer Institute. His clinical and research interests focus on the diagnosis and management of hematologic malignancies, including leukemia, lymphoma and multiple myeloma. He has published on venetoclax dosing strategies in acute myeloid leukemia and on therapeutic approaches for patients with myelofibrosis complicated by anemia and thrombocytopenia. Sastow hopes to begin his post-fellowship career in the Westchester/Fairfield area, where he and his family live. In his free time, he enjoys playing pickleball and basketball and attending concerts.

ProHEALTH Dental, affiliate of Northwell

Dr. Danielle A. Ruocco is a patient-focused general dentist with more than 20 years of experience. She earned a bachelor's degree in biology from Fordham University and her Doctor of Dental Surgery from Creighton University School of Dentistry in 2002, followed by a residency in general dentistry at NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital. Ruocco worked as an associate dentist in several New York practices before joining ProHealth Dental. She is passionate about community service and expanding access to care, and she is committed to lifelong learning to provide high-quality treatment. She enjoys all aspects of dentistry and takes a collaborative approach to ensure individualized care plans for each patient.

DOCTOR WITHOUT BOUNDARIES

Augustine Louis Moscatello

*Director and Chair, Department of Otolaryngology–Head and Neck Surgery
Westchester Medical Center,
New York Medical College*

Dr. Augustine Moscatello is a board-certified otolaryngologist with more than 40 years of experience. A graduate of the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai in 1982, he serves as director of the Department of Otolaryngology–Head and Neck Surgery at Westchester Medical Center and professor and chair of the department at New York Medical College. He is also affiliated with Maria Fareri Children's Hospital. Recognized since 1994 as one of America's, New York's and Westchester's Top Doctors, Moscatello is widely known for his expertise in treating conditions of the ear, nose and throat and has authored numerous publications in the field. For nearly two decades, Moscatello has led international medical missions to Peru, Colombia, India, Ethiopia, Thailand and Ukraine, providing advanced surgical care to children with cleft lips and palates and, more recently, to victims of blast trauma. In spring 2025, he completed his fifth mission to Ukraine, where he and his team performed complex facial reconstructive surgeries for soldiers and civilians with devastating war injuries. Moscatello exemplifies the spirit of global humanitarian medicine through his lifelong commitment to restoring health, dignity and hope to patients worldwide.

DOCTOR WITHOUT BOUNDARIES

Jk Rasamny

ENT, Otolaryngologist and Head and Neck Surgeon
White Plains Hospital

Dr. J.K. Rasamny earned his medical degree from the University of Virginia, where he was elected to the Alpha Omega Alpha Medical Honor Society. He completed his residency in otolaryngology-head and neck surgery at UVA, receiving the Mulholland Society Teaching Award for his work with medical students. He then completed a fellowship in head and neck oncology at the University of Pennsylvania, where he also served as a clinical instructor in the division of head and neck oncology. At Penn, Rasamny trained under Dr. Gregory Weinstein and Dr. Bert O'Malley Jr., pioneers of transoral robotic surgery (TORS). He developed specific expertise in applying TORS for the minimally invasive treatment of tumors of the tongue base, tonsil, pharynx and parapharyngeal space. His practice focuses on pediatric and adult patients with malignant and benign tumors of the head and neck, including cancers of the oral cavity, pharynx and larynx; tumors of the paranasal sinuses; endocrine tumors of the thyroid and parathyroid glands; salivary gland tumors; and cutaneous malignancies such as melanoma. He is trained in both open and endoscopic approaches for skull base and sinus tumors, as well as complex reconstruction of head and neck defects.

FEMALE INNOVATOR

Minerva Santos

Physician
NewYork-Presbyterian Hudson Valley Hospital

Dr. Minerva Santos is a board-certified internist who has practiced in Westchester since 1992. She earned her medical degree from the Mount Sinai School of Medicine, completed a residency in internal medicine and a fellowship in pulmonary diseases at Lenox Hill Hospital, and went on to establish her own practice in 1992. Her practice blends traditional, alternative and preventive medicine to help reduce disease risk. She believes wellness encompasses the whole person — mind, body and spirit — and follows the motto “looking good and feeling good from the inside out.” Central to her approach is listening to each patient’s story and providing care that goes beyond symptoms. Dr. Santos completed a fellowship in integrative medicine at the University of Arizona College of Medicine under Dr. Andrew Weil. She served as an associate professor at New York Medical College for 15 years, providing hands-on teaching for first- and second-year medical students, and was medical director of the Health and Wellness Department at Northern Westchester Hospital, where she helped introduce alternative therapies to the Cancer Center. From 1996 to 2014, she hosted the local cable program Your Health Today. She remains passionate and committed to delivering top-quality medical care and believes patients need trusted physicians more than ever in today’s changing times.

OUTSTANDING NURSE

Jessica Brighton, MSN RN
Vice President of Nursing
Crystal Run Healthcare

Jessica Brighton is vice president of nursing at Crystal Run Healthcare, where she has led patient-centered and operational improvements for nearly two decades. In her 19 years with the organization, including eight in her current role, she helped secure Joint Commission accreditation and embed Lean principles to enhance efficiency and care quality. She oversaw development of Lean pilot sites and directed the systemwide rollout of a new electronic health record to strengthen clinical integration. During the COVID-19 pandemic, she guided nursing teams with resilience and focus, ensuring staff had the resources to deliver safe, high-quality care. Brighton also champions mentorship programs to reduce burnout and build future nursing leaders. She serves on the executive board of the Greater Hudson Valley Council of Scouting America and was recently honored as a Woman in Leadership for her contributions to healthcare and community service.

JANINE MILLER joined the Westchester County Medical Society (WCMS) and the Westchester Academy of Medicine as the Executive Director in March 2015. Prior to her role with WCMS and WAM, Miller held positions at Columbia University and the Bronx County Medical Society. In her role with WCMS Miller is in charge of overseeing the day-to-day operations and functions of its administrative office and of more than 1,000 members. Her roles encompass the whole of the society's functions, including administrative, legislative, meeting organization and overseeing CME accrediting body through the Academy of Medicine. Miller works very closely with the WCMS physician Board of Directors and Executive Committee to achieve the goals of the Society and Academy as put forth by the mission of each organization. In doing this, she has built relationships with community leaders and organizations to further the interests and priorities of the WCMS, its members and New York state physicians as a whole. One of the top priorities of the WCMS is advancing State Medical Society legislative priorities by building relationships with state and county legislators and members of Congress who represent portions of Westchester County. Miller also works closely with the Medical Society of the State of New York (MSSNY), New York - based county medical societies, New York specialty societies and business partners in all advocacy efforts to strengthen organized medicine and enhance the value of membership.

GARY SASTOW is a partner at the law firm of Danziger & Markhoff LLP and has over 30 years of experience in the practice of law. While maintaining a broad scope of practice, Sastow focuses on representing health care professionals in all aspects of their business, professional and personal lives. Having been raised in a family of physicians, he possesses a unique understanding and insight into the business of practicing a health care profession. Combined with his years of practice in what has become a more complex and highly regulated industry, Sastow's clients see him as a trusted advisor, confidant and advocate. On an ongoing basis, he works with clients on transactional matters, regulatory compliance issues and problem solving, including providing representation to clients under professional investigation before OPMC, OPD or the Justice Center. He is a prolific speaker and author of professional articles in various publications. He has also served as an adjunct professor at Pace University teaching Health Law and Policy and Not-for-Profit Organizations, and he is a recommended legal services provider for the New York State Dental Association.

White Plains Hospital is a 292-bed, not-for-profit health care organization and a member of the Montefiore Health System, serving as its tertiary hub of advanced care in the Hudson Valley. Its mission is to provide exceptional acute, preventive and specialty services to the people who live in, work in and visit Westchester County and beyond. With more than 30 locations across Westchester—including multispecialty practices in Armonk, Hawthorne, Larchmont, New Rochelle, Rye Brook, Scarsdale, Somers and Yorktown Heights—White Plains Hospital and its physician network, White Plains Hospital Physician Associates, bring advanced care close to home for communities throughout the region. Nationally recognized for quality and safety, the hospital has earned a five-star rating from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services for four consecutive years, Magnet designation from the American Nurses Credentialing Center and 13 straight "A" Safety Grades from The Leapfrog Group. Construction is underway on a 10-story, 500,000-square-foot expansion scheduled to open in 2028, featuring 240 private rooms, new operating suites and an expanded emergency department designed to enhance the patient and family experience.

Northwell Health's Westchester Region, encompassing Phelps Hospital and Northern Westchester Hospital and the surrounding Hudson Valley, is dedicated to providing exceptional healthcare services. Phelps Hospital, with 238 beds, serves Westchester, Rockland, and Putnam County residents with advanced inpatient and outpatient services, including cancer care, stroke care, and cardiovascular diagnostics. It is recognized as a Magnet facility for nursing excellence. Northern Westchester Hospital is a 5-star CMS rated site, with 245 beds, offers state-of-the-art technology and world-class patient care, specializing in bariatric surgery, cancer treatment, and robotic surgery, among others. It also provides free cancer screenings for uninsured and underinsured residents. The region is further supported by over 70 ambulatory practices with more than 240 physicians across various specialties, ensuring comprehensive healthcare for the community.

The Westchester Medical Center Health Network (WMCHealth) is the leading provider of integrated health care in New York's Hudson Valley, serving nearly 2.5 million residents across more than 6,000 square miles. Headquartered in Valhalla, the 1,700-bed system includes nine hospitals on seven campuses and 60 ambulatory care sites. WMCHealth is home to the region's only Level I adult and pediatric trauma center and the only academic medical center between New York City and Albany. The network employs more than 13,000 people and nearly 3,000 attending physicians, caring for about 300,000 patients each year. WMCHealth is also the state's largest Medicaid provider north of New York City, serving one in three Medicaid patients in the region. Its facilities include Level II and Level III trauma centers, a nationally recognized children's hospital with the region's only Level IV neonatal intensive care unit, an organ transplant center, stroke and burn centers, and one of New York's largest mental health systems. A privately held company based in Mount Kisco, New York, Westfair Communications Inc. is the home of the Westfair Business Journal, which you can find online and which now integrate content from former publication WAG magazine, providing readers with a greater variety of business news and features. Westfair also publishes the popular News @ Noon e-newsletters, for late-breaking developments, as well as industry-specific newsletters. For more than 60 years, the Business Journals have been the only weekly countywide business publications. They were founded by former Westchester resident David Moore, a grandson of influential New York publisher Joseph Pulitzer, and John Smith, a former Wall Street Journal editor. In keeping with their founders' principles, the publications focus on the business community in Fairfield, Westchester and the rest of the Hudson Valley with breaking news, trends, tips and behind-the-scenes profiles among the papers' specialties. (The new content takes you beyond the business world to explore, food, travel, health/wellness and the home, while the entertainment-flavored calendar suggests where you should be and when.) The papers and newsletters have gained credibility and respect in the region for their honest, timely insights. Westfair also sponsors interactive programs for its readers, some of which are joint ventures with other businesses or community organizations. These programs cover a variety of subjects and take different forms, including seminars, expos, conferences, roundtable discussions and debates.
